

At Kaufmann's To-Day Gloves and Handkerchiefs Special

Big economies in little things that give a correctly dressed woman her own style.

LADIES' HANDKERCHIEFS.
25c VALUE, 9c—for Women's Soft Tissue and Linen Handkerchiefs, daintily embroidered in one corner.

THE LITTLE, 25c—a new Fabric Handkerchief for ladies, fine and sheer, indelible colored borders, excellent washing quality.

FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN.
19c VALUE, 10c A BOX—fancy box containing 2 dainty Muslin Handkerchiefs, embroidered corner.

LADIES' GLOVES.
$1.50 VALUE, $1.00—Peerless P. K. Kid Gloves, two pearl clasps, embroidered backs and over-stitched seams. Two-tone effects and all colors.

$1 VALUE, 69c—16-button Pure Silk Gloves, double tipped, in newest colorings.

$3 VALUE, $2.38—Long White Kid Gloves, 16-button, white stitched backs and made from selected skins, Cleopatra buttons.

Kaufmann & Company
Corner Fourth and Broad Streets.

Social and Personal

Mrs. Thomas F. Jeffers and her niece, Miss Virginia Haskins, who have been abroad since July, sailed Thursday for England for this country. Landing in New York, Mrs. Jeffers and Miss Haskins will come at once to Richmond. They have spent most of their time abroad visiting relatives near London.

In Newport News.
Mrs. Russell Crenshaw, formerly Miss Polly Robins, of this city, who has been the guest of her mother, Mrs. William Todd Robins, at the home of Mrs. Horace Wellford Jones, 200 East Franklin Street, is now in Newport News. Mrs. Crenshaw is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Mary Jones, in Newport News. Mrs. Crenshaw will leave later in the month for the North.

Wade-Saunders.
Clyde Preston Wade and Miss Carrie Wade were married Saturday evening, August 30, at the annex to the Seventh Street Christian Church, in this city. The Rev. H. D. C. MacLachlan, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony. Only a few friends of the bride and groom witnessed the ceremony. Mrs. Wade is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Saunders, of Vinton, Va. The groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Wade, of Roanoke. The bride has been spending the summer in Richmond, and has visited here on several occasions.

Mr. and Mrs. Wade will remain in Richmond until the late fall, when they will leave for their home in Roanoke. Guests at the Hotel.
Mrs. W. B. Rees has been entertaining several guests at her home, "Chapel Hill," near Buena Vista, this week. Mrs. Rees's visitors for the week included Misses Lella Webb, of Jackson, Miss.; Emma Campbell, of Richmond, and Mrs. Emma Walker, of Walker's Creek.

Richmond Chapter Hostesses.
The Richmond Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, as hostesses for the Convention of the Virginia Division, U. D. C., to be held in this city September 30 to October 4, ask that all who will have delegates with them for this occasion, or who can entertain delegates, will notify as soon as possible Mrs. Norman V. Randolph, in order that invitations may be sent to those who have guests. This is to be done that they may accompany them to the different entertainments to be given for the delegates at that time.

Returned to Chesterfield.
Miss Agnes Chatfield Coghill has just returned to her home, after spending a few days with friends in Cumberland County. Miss Gladys Thomas, of Chicago, Ill., is visiting Miss Coghill at her home in Chesterfield County.

Mrs. A. M. Cheatham, of West Point, Miss. Mary Curtis Lee, Mrs. Stonewall Jackson, Mrs. J. E. B. Stuart and Miss Virginia Mason will be the guests of the Richmond Chapter at the Jefferson Hotel for the convention. Everything will be done to entertain the delegates, and every chapter sending delegates to the convention is asked to notify Mrs. A. B. Blenner, chairman of hospitality, in order that the delegates may be informed of those who will entertain them.

Returned to Chesterfield.
Miss Agnes Chatfield Coghill has just returned to her home, after spending a few days with friends in Cumberland County. Miss Gladys Thomas, of Chicago, Ill., is visiting Miss Coghill at her home in Chesterfield County.

Mrs. A. M. Cheatham, of West Point, Miss. Mary Curtis Lee, Mrs. Stonewall Jackson, Mrs. J. E. B. Stuart and Miss Virginia Mason will be the guests of the Richmond Chapter at the Jefferson Hotel for the convention. Everything will be done to entertain the delegates, and every chapter sending delegates to the convention is asked to notify Mrs. A. B. Blenner, chairman of hospitality, in order that the delegates may be informed of those who will entertain them.

Dunlop Flour
IT'S MADE IN RICHMOND
The Dunlop Mills, Richmond, Va.

SCHOOL SHOES FOR BOYS AND GIRLS
$1.50 to $2.00.
Every Pair Guaranteed.

Kohler's
Third and Broad.

The beautiful furniture shown in the window display is attracting the careful attention of men and women who pass the store of

SYDNOR & HUNDLEY
SEVENTH AND GRACE STREETS.

The Velvet Kind
PURE ICE CREAM
Same Quality Every Day.
Monroe 181.

Stiff
PIANOS
and Players—the finest made, at makers' prices.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE New Method Gas Ranges
— AT —
PETTIT & CO.'S?

BIRTHDAY RINGS, BRACELETS, CAMEO BROOCHES.

Smith & Webster
805 East Main.

is a guest of her sister, Mrs. N. H. Coghill, at Chesterfield Courthouse for a few days.

Back From Marion.
Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Morris, of this city, who have been visiting relatives in Marion for more than a week, returned to Richmond on Friday. They were accompanied by Mrs. J. E. Garretson, a niece of Mr. Morris, who will remain in the city for a week, before leaving for Washington, Baltimore and Norfolk, where she will visit relatives.

Rev. J. J. Scherer and his family are visiting relatives in Marion for several days. They are attending a family reunion in that place.

In and Out of Town.
Miss Theresa Nurney, of Suffolk, is this guest of her sister, Mrs. Thomas A. Smyth, on Monument Avenue.

Henry W. Anderson has returned to the city, after spending the month of August at the White.

Frank Epps and his family motored to Richmond from Farmville this week, and spent several days with Mr. and Mrs. Hurt here.

Mrs. William Nelson and Misses Alice and Laura Nelson have returned to their home on West Grace Street, after an absence of two months from the city.

Mrs. J. S. Reynolds, of this city, is returning to the Virginia Cottage at Virginia Beach.

Miss Helen Fillebrown, who has been spending the summer in St. Paul, Minn., has returned to Richmond, and will make her home at 3 West Franklin Street.

Mrs. John Irby and small son, of Blackstone, have been recent guests of relatives in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones Schwab, of Birmingham, Ala., are guests of Mrs. Sternheimer, at 322 North Harrison Street, after spending the summer in Atlantic City.

Mrs. George C. McCham and Miss Kate Laube are spending a month in Atlantic City.

Judge and Mrs. W. A. Moncure and their children returned to the city Wednesday, after a month's stay with Judge and Mrs. E. C. Moncure in Carolina.

Miss Grace Gibson Beasley, of Petersburg, is visiting Mrs. Milton Hargrave in this city.

Miss Alice Clemmitt has returned to Richmond, after a visit to Mrs. Leon Wood, at Williamsburg Beach.

Miss Irma Price, who has been the guest of friends here, en route from New York, has returned to Salem.

William A. Green, who has been traveling in Europe for several months, will return to the city to-day.

Mrs. T. B. Thackston, of Spartanburg, S. C., who has been the guest of her brother, G. Moffett King, left yesterday for a visit to relatives in Staunton.

Miss Etty Clark has returned to Richmond, after spending the summer at the Rockbridge Springs.

Miss Mary Vaden has returned to her home here, after a visit to friends in Orange County.

Colonel and Mrs. James Branch are now at Branchland, Va., before coming to Richmond in the late fall.

Mrs. Benjamin B. Spicer, Miss Estelle F. Griggs, of this city, and Miss Caroline Campbell of Rocky Mount, N. C., are at Natural Bridge this week.

Mrs. John D. Potts and Miss Nell Potts, who have been in the White all summer, are now at Old Point Comfort for two weeks.

The Rev. John J. Wicker and his son, J. J. Wicker, Jr., who have been traveling in Palestine and Europe, have returned to Richmond.

Miss Pattie Lyell is visiting friends in Warrington, before returning to her home in this city.

Oscar Jordan, who has been visiting friends here for several days, has returned to his home in Pulaski.

Mrs. J. I. Nottingham, of Norfolk, is the guest of Mrs. Percy B. Taylor, at her home here.

Mrs. Fannie Moncure and her children have returned to the city, after a visit to Hanover.

Miss Florence Wood, of this city, has been visiting Miss Louise Smith, at Partlow, for a week.

H. M. Vaughan has returned to the city, after a short stay with Judge Barksdale, in Houston.

Miss Beale Fribble, of this city, is a guest of relatives in Hanover County for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Ford, who have been visiting friends in Newport News, have returned to their home in Richmond.

Mr. and Mrs. Ordway Puller have taken an apartment for the winter at 1314 Hanover Avenue.

UNDERWOOD IS TO ENTER FOR SENATE

Will Not Announce Candidacy Until After Tariff Bill Is Passed.

FEELS TIED TO HIS POST

As Party Leader, He Is Sponsor for First of Party Pledges.

Washington, September 5.—Close personal friends of Oscar Underwood, majority leader of the House, believe that immediately upon the passage and signing of the tariff bill, Mr. Underwood will announce his candidacy for the United States Senate for the long term, beginning March 4, 1915. In fact, it is believed that if the tariff bill were already upon the statute books Mr. Underwood would even now be an active candidate. The delay in the passage of the bill and the uncertainty of the fate of that measure, it is declared, is alone delaying Mr. Underwood's announcement.

Of course, no one doubts that the Democratic party will ultimately pass the tariff bill as it is written, without fundamental changes. President Wilson will not agree to any compromise, and the bill will eventually go through.

Feels Tied to Post.
The point is that Mr. Underwood feels that he is tied to his present place through a sense of his obligation to the high office he holds. As the leader of the party in the House, he stands sponsor for the tariff bill, and it is said he cannot for any personal reason or for any other reason leave that post of responsibility until the tariff law is an accomplished fact. In the meantime, Senator Simmons is confident that the bill will come to a final vote in a few days. Senator Simmons's optimism, however, is not shared fully by other prominent members of the party.

It is admitted that the defection of one or two Senators who are known to be shaky on the sugar and wool schedule may work delay.

Tried to Enter Race.
In the meantime, Mr. Underwood is being flooded with letters from his friends all over the State of Alabama, urging him to become a candidate and to announce his candidacy immediately. They assure him that there can be but one result, his triumphant election. But Mr. Underwood realizes the situation here perhaps more fully than any other candidate. He has kept in close touch with developments, and he fully recognizes that until the tariff bill is settled beyond the shadow of a doubt, he cannot afford to make any plans which place the fate of the legislation for which the Democratic party has been striving for years.

The question of whether or not he is to enter the race for Senator for the long term will be definitely settled within a few days, when the weeks' If Senator Simmons is correct and Senator Newlands, of Nevada, and Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, stand by the party on the final roll call on the passage of the Underwood bill, it is reasonably certain that the list of senatorial candidates in Alabama will be augmented by the formal announcement of Oscar W. Underwood.

Miller—Cunneen.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Atavista, Va., September 5.—A wedding ceremony was held at the bungalow home of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Cunneen, on Twelfth Street, in Norfolk, on Wednesday. The bride, Miss Annie Whitney, was united in marriage to James Garland Miller, of Norfolk. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. B. S. Cummins, Jr., and John Cunneen, brothers of the bride. The bride entered with her father. She wore a gown of emerald crepe and carried a train of white tulle and pearls.

What Scandal in To-Day's News Interests You $1,200 Worth?

This Is Rare Reading, Indeed—How The Times-Dispatch Is Giving a Gift Party!

Will you stop long enough to get $300 in gold coin? This is a right now proposition. It is something offered you to-day, to be closed with to-day. To-morrow pay dividend only in regrets—act to-day! The Times-Dispatch is conducting a $1,200 game, the Booklovers' Contest, which consists of seventy-seven pictures, one of which is published each day. Each picture represents the title of a book, and those coming closest to naming the book win a prize. The titles that the seventy-seven pictures represent will receive the awards. No canvassing, no word work, no advertising, no work of any kind. This is a real game—simply a game of solving pictures.

To-day picture, No. 42, is published. Will you stop long enough to get $300 in gold coin? This is a right now proposition. It is something offered you to-day, to be closed with to-day. To-morrow pay dividend only in regrets—act to-day! The Times-Dispatch is conducting a $1,200 game, the Booklovers' Contest, which consists of seventy-seven pictures, one of which is published each day. Each picture represents the title of a book, and those coming closest to naming the book win a prize. The titles that the seventy-seven pictures represent will receive the awards. No canvassing, no word work, no advertising, no work of any kind. This is a real game—simply a game of solving pictures.

To-day picture, No. 42, is published. Will you stop long enough to get $300 in gold coin? This is a right now proposition. It is something offered you to-day, to be closed with to-day. To-morrow pay dividend only in regrets—act to-day! The Times-Dispatch is conducting a $1,200 game, the Booklovers' Contest, which consists of seventy-seven pictures, one of which is published each day. Each picture represents the title of a book, and those coming closest to naming the book win a prize. The titles that the seventy-seven pictures represent will receive the awards. No canvassing, no word work, no advertising, no work of any kind. This is a real game—simply a game of solving pictures.

To-day picture, No. 42, is published. Will you stop long enough to get $300 in gold coin? This is a right now proposition. It is something offered you to-day, to be closed with to-day. To-morrow pay dividend only in regrets—act to-day! The Times-Dispatch is conducting a $1,200 game, the Booklovers' Contest, which consists of seventy-seven pictures, one of which is published each day. Each picture represents the title of a book, and those coming closest to naming the book win a prize. The titles that the seventy-seven pictures represent will receive the awards. No canvassing, no word work, no advertising, no work of any kind. This is a real game—simply a game of solving pictures.

To-day picture, No. 42, is published. Will you stop long enough to get $300 in gold coin? This is a right now proposition. It is something offered you to-day, to be closed with to-day. To-morrow pay dividend only in regrets—act to-day! The Times-Dispatch is conducting a $1,200 game, the Booklovers' Contest, which consists of seventy-seven pictures, one of which is published each day. Each picture represents the title of a book, and those coming closest to naming the book win a prize. The titles that the seventy-seven pictures represent will receive the awards. No canvassing, no word work, no advertising, no work of any kind. This is a real game—simply a game of solving pictures.

To-day picture, No. 42, is published. Will you stop long enough to get $300 in gold coin? This is a right now proposition. It is something offered you to-day, to be closed with to-day. To-morrow pay dividend only in regrets—act to-day! The Times-Dispatch is conducting a $1,200 game, the Booklovers' Contest, which consists of seventy-seven pictures, one of which is published each day. Each picture represents the title of a book, and those coming closest to naming the book win a prize. The titles that the seventy-seven pictures represent will receive the awards. No canvassing, no word work, no advertising, no work of any kind. This is a real game—simply a game of solving pictures.

To-day picture, No. 42, is published. Will you stop long enough to get $300 in gold coin? This is a right now proposition. It is something offered you to-day, to be closed with to-day. To-morrow pay dividend only in regrets—act to-day! The Times-Dispatch is conducting a $1,200 game, the Booklovers' Contest, which consists of seventy-seven pictures, one of which is published each day. Each picture represents the title of a book, and those coming closest to naming the book win a prize. The titles that the seventy-seven pictures represent will receive the awards. No canvassing, no word work, no advertising, no work of any kind. This is a real game—simply a game of solving pictures.

To-day picture, No. 42, is published. Will you stop long enough to get $300 in gold coin? This is a right now proposition. It is something offered you to-day, to be closed with to-day. To-morrow pay dividend only in regrets—act to-day! The Times-Dispatch is conducting a $1,200 game, the Booklovers' Contest, which consists of seventy-seven pictures, one of which is published each day. Each picture represents the title of a book, and those coming closest to naming the book win a prize. The titles that the seventy-seven pictures represent will receive the awards. No canvassing, no word work, no advertising, no work of any kind. This is a real game—simply a game of solving pictures.

To-day picture, No. 42, is published. Will you stop long enough to get $300 in gold coin? This is a right now proposition. It is something offered you to-day, to be closed with to-day. To-morrow pay dividend only in regrets—act to-day! The Times-Dispatch is conducting a $1,200 game, the Booklovers' Contest, which consists of seventy-seven pictures, one of which is published each day. Each picture represents the title of a book, and those coming closest to naming the book win a prize. The titles that the seventy-seven pictures represent will receive the awards. No canvassing, no word work, no advertising, no work of any kind. This is a real game—simply a game of solving pictures.

To-day picture, No. 42, is published. Will you stop long enough to get $300 in gold coin? This is a right now proposition. It is something offered you to-day, to be closed with to-day. To-morrow pay dividend only in regrets—act to-day! The Times-Dispatch is conducting a $1,200 game, the Booklovers' Contest, which consists of seventy-seven pictures, one of which is published each day. Each picture represents the title of a book, and those coming closest to naming the book win a prize. The titles that the seventy-seven pictures represent will receive the awards. No canvassing, no word work, no advertising, no work of any kind. This is a real game—simply a game of solving pictures.

WIFE IS DAUGHTER OF CRIMEAN VETERAN

English Lord Is Conspicuous Figure at Horse Shows in United States.

BY LA MARQUE DE FONTENAY.
LORD LOUTH, who spends much of his time on this side of the Atlantic, a conspicuous figure at horse shows here, and devoted to every form of sport, has just married. The new Lady Louth is a pretty girl, a daughter of the late Colonel Hampton Lewis, a Crimean veteran. She is but little older than Lord Louth's only son, the Hon. Otway Plunkett, who came of age last year. Lord Louth's first marriage was dissolved by a divorce court last year, the former Lady Louth being a daughter of the late Colonel Edmund Bellairs, so long British consul at Biarritz, and at whose beautiful villa, Mouriscot, there now leased to Princess Frederica of Hanover, King Alfonso of Spain became affianced to Princess Ena of Battenberg.

Fourteenth holder of the barony, which dates from the reign of Henry VIII., and which, being an English title, does not carry with it a seat in the House of Lords, Lord Louth is descended, like the Earl of Fingall and Lord Dunsany, from that John Plunkett who established himself at Bewly, County Louth, at the end of the sixteenth century. His divorce and remarriage have created a good deal of stir in Roman Catholic circles in Ireland, as well as in England, and, inasmuch as that church does not recognize divorce, the position of the new Lady Louth among them is likely to be somewhat awkward.

Lord Louth's family have suffered much by reason of their faith and their loyalty to the Stuart. The sixth Earl was for many years imprisoned in Dublin Castle by order of Cromwell, and his son, the seventh lord, was outlawed for throwing in his lot with the latter's fortunes. Now was it until the end of the eighteenth century that the attainder was repealed in favor of Thomas Plunkett, who was established in his rank in the Irish peerage, as eleventh Earl of Louth. One of the members of this house, Archbishop Oliver Plunkett, Primate of Ireland, who was executed at Tyburn in 1681, is in process of canonization at Rome.

Lord Louth was born at sea, on board his father's famous yacht, the Pilgrim, whence his odd Christian name of Pilgrim, and his membership of the East London parish of Stepney. For the reign of Queen Elizabeth, all British subjects born at sea under the English flag have their births entered in the register of the Thames river side parish of Stepney. Stepney in those days was one of the principal anchorages of the great port of London. The ages of the great port of London, law sometimes leads to a peculiar condition of affairs. There is an Australian statesman, now holding the post of Premier, in one of the states of the Commonwealth, whose birth, like that of his father before him, had been registered at Stepney, although neither of them had ever set foot in England until the younger of the two came to London for King George's coronation.

It is perhaps because he was born on a yacht that Lord Louth is so fond of yachting and of outdoor life. He is equally at home in the saddle, and has been Master of the Louth Hounds ever since he came of age, twenty-two years ago, and has maintained the great tradition of the sport of kings, namely, fox-hunting. He served for a time in the army as a subaltern of the Wiltshire Regiment, popularly known as "the Buffs," but resigned his commission on marrying, in order to devote himself to his estates, which have been in the possession of his family for hundreds of years, and which extend over an area of some 5,000 acres around his ancestral home, Louth Hall. They embrace the neighboring town of Ardee.

There are now three Lady Louths in existence, namely, his young bride, his divorced wife, and his widowed stepmother. After the late peer's death, the young Lady Louth contracted a very foolish marriage with a drunken brute of the name of Richard Muldowney, with the result that she lost her reason, and has ever since been in a sanatorium, the countess having fortunately freed her from her husband on account of his brutality, intemperance, and statutory misconduct.

Everybody who has stayed at Killarney House, the beautiful place of the Earl of Kenmare, on the Lake of Killarney, will be glad to hear that in the destruction by fire of the greater portion of the mansion last week, the private chapel escaped destruction. Lady Kenmare's mother, who is a convert to the Roman Catholic church, had determined that this chapel should be absolutely perfect of its kind. Of exquisite proportions, with its altar of transparent Oriental onyx, its white and green marble walls, its costly mosaics, its beautiful paintings, its gorgeous old silver candlesticks encrusted with coral, and its rare embroidered vestments, it is a perfect gem of ecclesiastical art.

One of the features of Killarney House has been the beauty of the door handles, the majority of which are carved of rose wood, and are wonderfully enameled seventeenth and eighteenth century watch-cases. It is to be feared that most of these have been in the flames, as well as the magnificent old Spanish embossed leather, hundreds of years old, with which the large dining-room is, or was, tapestried.

Kenmare House, although built by the late Lord Kenmare a few years ago, looked, with its Elizabethan style of architecture, all covered with creeping ivy, very much like an old mansion, and the windows and terraces commanded an unbroken view of some fifteen miles of the famous Killarney lake and mountain scenery—a scenery that enjoys world-wide celebrity.

Lord and Lady Kenmare will receive general sympathy for the loss of their beautiful home. For they have done much good in the district, and Lady Kenmare, in particular, has established among other things a technical industrial school at Killarney. Indeed, both she and her husband have spent much time, trouble and money in promoting the development of the district, and have founded amongst other things a most successful furniture factory, where beautiful and artistic articles are designed and executed.

The Brownes, of whom Lord Kenmare is the head, hailed originally from Hertfordshire, and in the reign of Henry VIII. had their seat at Totter, in Lincolnshire. But in 1584, Elizabeth appointed Sir Valentine Browne surveyor of escheated lands in Ireland. Five years later he purchased from Donald Earl of Glencare, many of the latter's lands and manors, one of the counties of Kerry and Cork, and subsequently obtained from James I. that the vast portion of him, a grant of all the estates of Lord Glencare, the latter dying intestate, without issue. The grant, which bears the sign manual of King James, and the date of 1605, is now in the possession of the Earl of Kenmare, and it includes "The Lakes of Killarney, and all the islands in the same, and the fisheries of the said lake, and the soil and the bottom thereof." For a time all these great possessions of land and water belonging to the Brownes were confiscated, owing to their loyalty to James II., and to the Stuart, that is to say, the present cause of law, was not until the end of the eighteenth century that the lands were restored, and that the peerages which the family had lost, namely, the earldom and barony of Kenmare, and the county of Castleross, were confirmed to them by George III.

It was while he was Lord Castleross, before the death of his father, that the present Earl of Kenmare furnished a striking illustration of the generous sense of honor. Married to the Hon. Elizabeth Barling, sister of the present Earl of Revelstoke, he had received with her a large dowry. When the house of Barling got into difficulties, some twenty years ago, Lord Castleross came forward and voluntarily assumed the responsibility of the firm the entire amount of the dowry for the benefit of the Barling creditors. As every one knows, the liquidation required a number of years, and eventually resulted in the payment in full of all the obligations of the firm, by means of its assets, so that Lord and Lady Kenmare were enabled to clear their money back, without the loss of a penny. This does not, however, in any way diminish the merit of the heavy sacrifice which they made two decades ago, a time reducing themselves to absolute poverty, for the sake of the honor of the house of Barling. (Copyright, 1913, by the Brentwood Company.)

STUMP THE SOUTH FOR THE CONGRESS

Southern Commercial Organization Includes Richmond in Its Itinerary.

Washington, September 5.—Announcement was made to-day that John Barrett, director-general of the Pan-American Union, and Dr. J. Clarence Owens, managing director of the Southern Commercial Congress, will leave Washington next Tuesday on a speaking tour of sixteen Southern States in the interest of the fifth annual meeting of the Southern Commercial Congress. The Congress will meet at Mobile, Ala., October 27 to 29.

Among the cities at which they will deliver addresses, will be Baltimore, Richmond, Raleigh, N. C., Columbia, S. C., Atlanta, Ga., Jacksonville, Fla., Mobile, Ala., and Knoxville, Tenn. The Pan-American Commercial Conference, under the auspices of the Pan-American Union, will participate with the Southern Commercial Congress in this convention. The convention theme will be "The Relation of the United States to the Panama Canal, to Latin-America and to World Commerce."

President Wilson, Secretary Bryan and Secretary Daniels will be the speakers. Besides these are Governor O'Neal, of Alabama; Director-General John Barrett, of the Pan-American Union; Senator Morales, Panama minister to Washington; Minister Pezet, of Peru; John M. Parker, of Louisiana; Colonel Harvie Jordan, of Georgia; Clarence Osley, of Texas; Bradford Knight, of the United States Department of Agriculture; General Julian S. Carr, of North Carolina; J. Rice Smith, of Virginia; Claude N. Bonner, of Washington, D. C.; William Boyce, of Chicago; Colonel D. C. Collier, president of the Panama Canal Exposition; Lieutenant-Colonel William Silbert, of the Isthmian Canal Commission; Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, of Florida; president of the Southern Commercial Congress and chairman of the American commission on agricultural co-operation; Senator Bankhead and Senator Designa, of Georgia; Senator Smith, of Louisiana; Prof. W. R. Johnson, of the Isthmian Canal Commission, and Representative Hobson, of Indiana, and Taylor, of Alabama.

WIFE IS DAUGHTER OF CRIMEAN VETERAN

English Lord Is Conspicuous Figure at Horse Shows in United States.

BY LA MARQUE DE FONTENAY.
LORD LOUTH, who spends much of his time on this side of the Atlantic, a conspicuous figure at horse shows here, and devoted to every form of sport, has just married. The new Lady Louth is a pretty girl, a daughter of the late Colonel Hampton Lewis, a Crimean veteran. She is but little older than Lord Louth's only son, the Hon. Otway Plunkett, who came of age last year. Lord Louth's first marriage was dissolved by a divorce court last year, the former Lady Louth being a daughter of the late Colonel Edmund Bellairs, so long British consul at Biarritz, and at whose beautiful villa, Mouriscot, there now leased to Princess Frederica of Hanover, King Alfonso of Spain became affianced to Princess Ena of Battenberg.

Fourteenth holder of the barony, which dates from the reign of Henry VIII., and which, being an English title, does not carry with it a seat in the House of Lords, Lord Louth is descended, like the Earl of Fingall and Lord Dunsany, from that John Plunkett who established himself at Bewly, County Louth, at the end of the sixteenth century. His divorce and remarriage have created a good deal of stir in Roman Catholic circles in Ireland, as well as in England, and, inasmuch as that church does not recognize divorce, the position of the new Lady Louth among them is likely to be somewhat awkward.

Lord Louth's family have suffered much by reason of their faith and their loyalty to the Stuart. The sixth Earl was for many years imprisoned in Dublin Castle by order of Cromwell, and his son, the seventh lord, was outlawed for throwing in his lot with the latter's fortunes. Now was it until the end of the eighteenth century that the attainder was repealed in favor of Thomas Plunkett, who was established in his rank in the Irish peerage, as eleventh Earl of Louth. One of the members of this house, Archbishop Oliver Plunkett, Primate of Ireland, who was executed at Tyburn in 1681, is in process of canonization at Rome.

Lord Louth was born at sea, on board his father's famous yacht, the Pilgrim, whence his odd Christian name of Pilgrim, and his membership of the East London parish of Stepney. For the reign of Queen Elizabeth, all British subjects born at sea under the English flag have their births entered in the register of the Thames river side parish of Stepney. Stepney in those days was one of the principal anchorages of the great port of London. The ages of the great port of London, law sometimes leads to a peculiar condition of affairs. There is an Australian statesman, now holding the post of Premier, in one of the states of the Commonwealth, whose birth, like that of his father before him, had been registered at Stepney, although neither of them had ever set foot in England until the younger of the two came to London for King George's coronation.

It is perhaps because he was born on a yacht that Lord Louth is so fond of yachting and of outdoor life. He is equally at home in the saddle, and has been Master of the Louth Hounds ever since he came of age, twenty-two years ago, and has maintained the great tradition of the sport of kings, namely, fox-hunting. He served for a time in the army as a subaltern of the Wiltshire Regiment, popularly known as "the Buffs," but resigned his commission on marrying, in order to devote himself to his estates, which have been in the possession of his family for hundreds of years, and which extend over an area of some 5,000 acres around his ancestral home, Louth Hall. They embrace the neighboring town of Ardee.

There are now three Lady Louths in existence, namely, his young bride, his divorced wife, and his widowed stepmother. After the late peer's death, the young Lady Louth contracted a very foolish marriage with a drunken brute of the name of Richard Muldowney, with the result that she lost her reason, and has ever since been in a sanatorium, the countess having fortunately freed her from her husband on account of his brutality, intemperance, and statutory misconduct.

Everybody who has stayed at Killarney House, the beautiful place of the Earl of Kenmare, on the Lake of Killarney, will be glad to hear that in the destruction by fire of the greater portion of the mansion last week, the private chapel escaped destruction. Lady Kenmare's mother, who is a convert to the Roman Catholic church, had determined that this chapel should be absolutely perfect of its kind. Of exquisite proportions, with its altar of transparent Oriental onyx, its white and green marble walls, its